

TRANSCRIPT PREPARED BY THE CLERK OF THE LEGISLATURE
Transcriber's Office

January 12, 2000 LB 480

smashes the Stradivari, and the mentor just shakes his head and say, somewhere along the line I didn't do my job; a missing link is there. To use Senator Suttle's, one of her examples, some synapses are not connecting or firing. (Laugh) But, at any rate, those of you who may not have followed all the ins and outs of this bill, and...

SPEAKER KRISTENSEN: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...I can understand if you haven't, read from what I read and it's attached to this long list of women who support this bill, and you'll see the letter from Creighton University along with others, the Creighton University Medical School, and just ask yourselves do you think they're able to read English and understand it, or are we all duped, deluded and misled and the only one who has the light is "Baron" Tyson? That's not impossible, but it's highly unlikely. It's not impossible that the worth can...world can be suspended from a rope of sand; highly unlikely. Not impossible that water will run uphill; highly unlikely. But there is one river in Nebraska that runs the opposite direction and, because it runs the opposite direction, some guys were caught because they were following the river and thought they were going toward Canada, but because they were going against the stream they were actually going south and came right back to Nebraska, were apprehended, and are currently on death row...

SPEAKER KRISTENSEN: Time.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...right to this day.

SPEAKER KRISTENSEN: Senator Suttle.

SENATOR SUTTLE: Thank you.

SENATOR TYSON: (Microphone malfunction)...Mr. Speaker, the...

SPEAKER KRISTENSEN: Senator Tyson, it's Senator Suttle's turn.

SENATOR TYSON: I'm sorry.

SENATOR SUTTLE: Senator Tyson, you...are you...do you have
